

WAR TANK IS COMING TOMORROW

FIRST EVENT OF THE VICTORY LIBERTY LOAN DRIVE IS SCHEDULED FOR GREENCASTLE TUESDAY AT NEAR NOON, WHEN HUGE FIGHTING MACHINE WILL VISIT CITY.

HERE UNTIL WEDNESDAY

The first event to arouse the patriotism of Putnam county folks in the Victory Liberty Loan drive scheduled to begin April 21 will occur tomorrow, Tuesday, when a huge war tank in charge of a U. S. army officer and a company of tank fighters will visit Greencastle and exhibit the monster fighters which took such a prominent part in the battles on the French front to Greencastle people.

The tank was in Terre Haute Sunday and will be in Brazil today. Leaving Brazil tomorrow morning, it will come to Greencastle by way of Reelsville and is scheduled to reach here at near noon. The tank will be on the streets all afternoon and evening and will leave early Wednesday morning for Cloverdale.

Putnam county and Greencastle people by the hundreds are expected here to get their first look at one of these huge fighting machines. Few if any Putnam county people have ever seen one and the exhibit no doubt will arouse much enthusiasm.

VOTE TO GIVE FRANK WALLACE $2,400 A YEAR

TOWNSHIP TRUSTEES TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE RECENT ACT OF LEGISLATURE WHICH PROVIDES THAT HEAD OF COUNTY SCHOOLS MAY RECEIVE INCREASED SALARY.

UP TO COMMISSIONERS

Taking advantage of the law passed during the recent session of the state legislature, the county trustees in session this morning voted to increase the salary of Frank Wallace, county superintendent, $1,000 a year. The salary now being paid is $4.50 a day, which amounts to about $1,400 a year.

Under the new law the trustees may vote to increase the salary. Then the superintendent must secure 400 names to a petition asking the county commissioners to give the increase. The commissioners, upon receipt of the petition, can either adopt it or reject it.

There was little discussion among the trustees regarding the matter. It is generally conceded that a salary of $1,400 a year to the head of a county school organization is too small.

Another new law was taken advantage of when the trustees, acting under new legislation, turned over to the county commissioners the care of all unimproved roads. Under the old law the township trustee looked after the unimproved roads in the township, while the commissioners looked after only the improved roads.

HIGH PRICES FOR HOGS NOW MARKED AT $20.80

April 7.—A small run of hogs Monday, 4,500, caused spirited bidding and resulted in a general advance in prices of 10 cents, with sales ranging between $20.40 and $20.80, most of them at $20.50 to $20.65. Local packers got 2,800; outsiders the rest. The 1,000 new arrivals of cattle sold at steady prices; 450 calves at a strong level and 250 sheep unchanged from Saturday.

COLLEGE AVENUE REVIVAL BEGINS

EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN CONDUCTED BY THE REV. BLAINE KIRKPATRICK, ASSISTED BY V. P. BROCK, SINGER, STARTS SUNDAY.

SERVICE EACH EVENING

What promises to be one of the most successful evangelistic campaigns ever held in Greencastle began Sunday morning when the Rev. Blaine E. Kirkpatrick, assisted by Prof. V. P. Brock, a well known evangelistic singer, conducted the opening service of a campaign inaugurated by the College avenue Methodist church.

Prof. Brock, who prior to the service was unknown to the majority of the congregation, quickly gained favor with the audience and in an informal and happy manner expressed his appreciation of the privilege of working with Rev. Kirkpatrick and in the Methodist church. His ambition, he told the audience, was to gain the sincere friendship of every member of the church, as well as that of those outside of the congregation with whom he was thrown in contact.

The theme of the morning sermon was the outlining of a program which Christians under the leadership of Christ may accomplish. Rev. Kirkpatrick as well as Prof. Brock stressed the importance of every member of the church giving themselves wholeheartedly to promote the evangelistic campaign. The services will not prove successful, Rev. Kirkpatrick predicted, unless every man and woman in the church strives to make them so.

One of the features of the campaign, it is said, will be the congregational singing which Prof. Brock will conduct. He intends, he states, to form a large chorus choir, but the song service which will precede the preaching service will be largely devoted to congregational singing. A large choir loft has been constructed in the church and anyone who desires is invited to help with the singing.

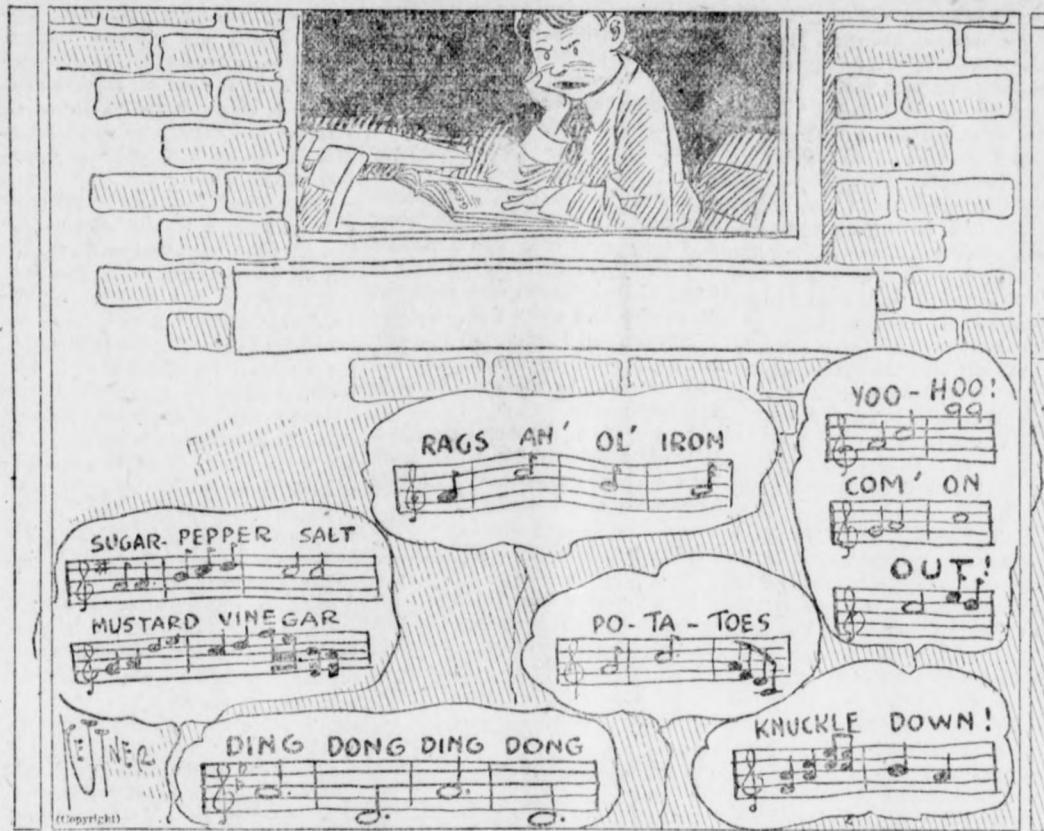

The evening service, contrary to the usual Sunday evening services held in Greencastle churches, was attended by a large crowd. The song service was enthusiastic and inspirational and the sermon preached by the Rev. Kirkpatrick was listened to intently. The pastor spoke of outstanding sins familiar to the world of today. He explained the sin of neglecting to put "first things first."

The week night services of the church will begin this evening at 7 o'clock. A rousing song service will be conducted by Prof. Brock and those who felt the touch of his magnetic personality Sunday will welcome the opportunity of attending the song service.

SHIPPED THREE CARS OF EGGS LAST WEEK

The Greencastle Produce Company is doing a big egg business just now. Last week three car loads of eggs, each car containing not less than 9,000 dozen, were shipped to New York. That makes 27,000 dozen, or 324,000 eggs. Clodfelter & Bettis, who conduct a general store at Morton, are supplying the Greencastle Produce Company with 1,000 dozen eggs each day. The farmers are getting 38c a dozen for eggs this week. Last week the Greencastle Produce Company paid the Putnam county farmers more than $10,000 for eggs. Figure it out for yourself.

RAINBOW BOYS BEGIN PAYING EUROPE ADIEU

FIRST TRAIN LEAVES RHINE FOR BREAST DAY AHEAD OF SCHEDULE AND MOVE WILL BE RAPID—STOP OFF FOR DAY ON WAY TO CAMP TAYLOR WILL GIVE TIME FOR PARADE IN INDIANAPOLIS.

DOCK GREETINGS TABOODED

Coblentz, April 5.—The Rainbow Division today began saying good-bye to the Rhine. Soon after 10 o'clock this morning the first train pulled out for Brest, carrying the division headquarters and the units attached to it. The department of the 42nd Division, composed of National Guardsmen of twenty-seven states and the third division to land in France, is the first divisional movement of troops for home from the American area of occupation.

Three trains will leave the station near Remagen daily until April 11, when the tail end of the Rainbows will see the last of the Rhine. It is estimated that the entire division will be on the Atlantic a few days later.

A dispatch from Coblentz Friday night said the first units of the Rainbow Division would entrain Sunday. Apparently the schedule has been moved up a day.

Washington, April 5.—The 150th Field Artillery Regiment of the Rainbow Division will stop off in Indianapolis for one day on its way to Camp Taylor for demobilization, it was announced at the war department today.

The one-day stop will be made to permit a parade before Indiana people who are eager to do them honor and welcome them home. They probably will arrive in the forenoon and depart in the evening of the same day. The exact date for this visit, of course, can not be fixed until after their arrival in this country. It is fitting that the regiment parade in the Indiana capital, since every county in the state is represented in the unit.

No Capital Parade. Disappointment was expressed here today that the division as a whole will not parade in the nation's capital as had been planned. Gen. March, chief of staff, announced that it has been decided definitely that the divisional parade shall not be held here. It had been hoped to have President Wilson here to review such a parade, but delay in his homecoming causes an abandonment of the plan. Secretary of War Baker also will be absent at that time. The secretary had hoped to finish his errand in Europe in time to return with the Rainbow Division, but the division is coming too soon for him.

It is not yet known whether the division will disembark at New York or at Newport News, Va. It is probable that both ports will be used.

The various units will spend only a brief period in the camps near the ports, stopping only for the cleaning up and then will go to Camp Meade, which is situated half way between Washington and Baltimore.

Parents who contemplate greeting their sons the minute they step off ship will be disappointed, because the public is not permitted to come in contact with returning troops until after the sanitary precautions have been taken. All returning troops go into quarantine immediately on leaving the ship at the port and all visitors are barred from their camp for one or two days.

CONTRACT FOR TWO ROAD ARE AWARDED TODAY

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS IN SESSION, TODAY, TAKE UP MATTER OF BUILDING ROADS—BIDDERS FAIL TO SUBMIT BIDS FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF TWO ROADS.

DAY AND WEBB ARE LOW

Alonzo Day was awarded the contract for building the Thomas J. Moreland road in Jackson township and Otto Webb was awarded the contract for building the B. N. Conley road in Monroe township, by the County Commissioners in regular session today.

Advertisements had been published asking bids on five roads but contractors failed to submit bids on two of the roads, while the bid for the construction of another was so high, that sufficient money was not available to build it.

The roads, estimates of cost, and the bidders and amount of the bids is as follows:

Thomas J. Moreland Road, Jackson township, estimated cost	$7,644.
Alonzo Day	$7,414
B. N. Conley Road, Monroe township, estimated cost	$9,586
O. G. Webb	$9,296
Walter Heath	$9,400
William Dills Road, Madison township, estimated cost	$11,730
C. B. Shaner	$10,875

(There is not available sufficient money to build this road and so the contract was not let). There were no bids on the G. H. Bales road in Cloverdale and Warren townships and the W. H. Lookabill road in Russell township.

U. S. DELEGATION IS MORE HOPEFUL

LLOYD GEORGE'S FORECAST AND AGREEMENT ON REPARATIONS ARE GIVEN AS REASONS—PRESIDENT WILSON'S CONDITION REPORTED BETTER.

RUSSIAN POLICY PROPOSED

Paris, April 7.—Lloyd George's prediction that the preliminary peace treaty would be ready by Easter and the reported agreement on the principles of indemnity and reparations to be paid by Germany created a more hopeful attitude in American circles. The council of four resumed work again today with E. M. House representing the President, who although his condition continued to show improvement was directed by his physician, Rear Admiral Grayson, to remain quiet for another day.

Lenine Has Made Proposals. A definite policy for dealing with Russia has been evolved by the American delegation. This proposal, it is said, will be submitted to the other peace delegations for their consideration and approval. Reports have been current recently that Premier Lenine, of Russia, had approached the peace conference with an offer to make concessions and to cease hostilities in return for food.

Paris newspapers, in reporting the agreement on the reparations problem by the Big Four, and that no differences as to details are expected, and that the financial terms in text should be completed during the week. The Echo de Paris says that compromises were effected on all debatable points regarding the amount to be paid at once by Germany and the payments in the future.

HOUSEKEEPERS' WEEK WILL BE OBSERVED APRIL 7-12

Lafayette, Ind., April 7.—Too many women have not put home making on a professional basis. Too little thought has been given to system of work, interior decoration and labor saving devices, declared Miss Leila Gaddis, state leader of home demonstration agents.

Housekeepers Week, April 7-12, has been planned to bring to the notice of the housekeeper, labor saving devices, assistance in selecting wall paper, curtains, hangings, carpets, rugs, etc. Merchants throughout the state are co-operating by lending material for demonstrations, by furnishing

RESIDENCES IN OMAHA LEVELED BY TORNADO

Omaha, April 7.—Heavy property damage, but few personal injuries of consequence resulted from a tornado that swept across the western residence district of Omaha last night shortly after 8 o'clock. Dundee and Clifton hills suffered the greatest losses, many homes being unroofed and in some cases practically ruined.

The twister came at almost the same hour of the day of the week as the more disastrous storm of Easter Sunday, 1913. It also entered Omaha at exactly the same spot as did its deadlier predecessor, and in general followed the same path for a considerable distance.

Near the town of Elmwood three farmhouses were wrecked and blown away. Live stock was killed and wheat fields were badly damaged by a fall of hail which followed the wind.

WORK AT LAYING OUT GOLF LINKS NOW UNDER WAY

NINE HOLE COURSE TO BE BUILT THIS WEEK—LAND IS IN SPLENDID CONDITION AND GOLF CLUB HOPES TO HAVE THINGS GOING BY NEXT WEEK.

MORE THAN 50 MEMBERS

Work at laying out the new course for the Greencastle Golf Club links on the Allen farm just northeast of town was begun this morning by John Friend, who has had charge of the building and care of the old links, and the club officers expect to have the course in good shape by the end of the week.

A committee in charge of the grounds has laid out a course which they state is a splendid one. The building of the greens and other necessary work is now under way. The land rented by the golf club is in splendid shape. It is fine blue grass sod. During the past week the land has been thoroughly rolled, so that it now is solid and smooth.

More than fifty members have been enrolled in the club under the re-organization and a most prosperous season is anticipated.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

The fifth district discussion contest will be held Friday evening at 7:30 in the new high school auditorium. Carl O'Hair, a senior in C. H. S., will represent Putnam county. The following counties will be represented: Putnam, Vigo, Clay, Vermillion, Park and Hendricks. A musical program for the contest is being arranged by Miss Catherine Allison, teacher of public school music in Greencastle.

Miss Patterson, formerly instructor in music in the public schools, was in the city Saturday and Sunday on a short visit. Miss Patterson is now in Pittsburg, where she has charge of the music in one of the largest high schools in Pittsburg. Miss Catherine Allison was a pupil of Miss Patterson when she held classes in DePauw.

The high school students are eagerly waiting the arrival of the "tanks" which will be in Greencastle tomorrow. They will arrive at noon and remain until evening. There are several young men in school who have seen tanks in action in France and to them the sight will not be so thrilling.

A county track meet will be held April 26 on McKeen Field. Roschdale, Bainbridge and Cloverdale are expected to send representatives in all events. The G. H. S. squad is improving daily and in a few weeks the thinly clad will be ready to compete with other schools.

Wednesday evening the high school will put on in the auditorium an exceptionally interesting picture show. The name of the film will be "Seven Keys to Baldpate," featuring George M. Cohan. A Holmes travelogue and a Bray Pictograph film will complete the entertainment. The show will begin at 7:30. The usual afternoon matinee will also be shown.

SOVIET PLOTS FOUND IN TOWNS OF GERMANY

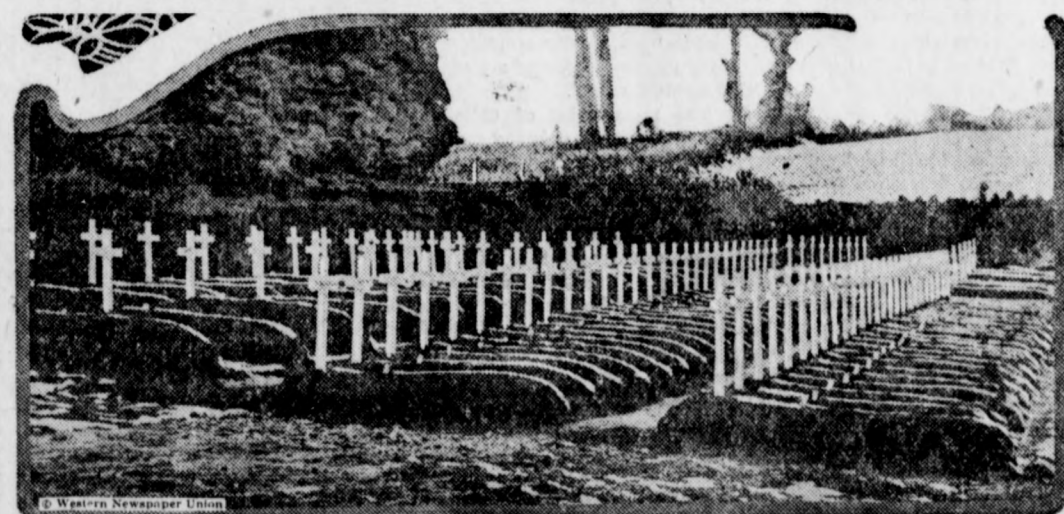

Copenhagen, April 7.—The German government has discovered plots in several towns for establishment of a soviet republic, a semi-official dispatch from Berlin announced today. Repressive measures are being taken.

The Krupp works are reported to be idle and its officials have been instructed to arm themselves against an emergency.

A dispatch from Berlin Saturday night said the government had discovered a plot to proclaim a soviet republic in that city.

Arming the Krupp officials may mean that a Spartan attack is plotted on the works in an effort to obtain a large supply of arms and ammunition.

COULDN'T FIND GIRL

Marine Returning From the War Took Her Picture Long Ago.

A handsome young man in a marine uniform jumped from an east-bound passenger train as it pulled up to the station at Seymour, Ind., and with a quick step walked up and down the platform, glancing hurriedly at each girl he met. His half-anger and half-anxious expression attracted the attention of a newspaper reporter, who offered assistance.

The marine explained he was a passenger on a troop train through Seymour 18 months ago. While the engine was coaling he stepped to the station platform and was soon conversing with an attractive young woman. They agreed to write, but in the excitement both forgot to give the other the name and address. After the marine boarded the train he whipped his camera from his pocket and got a snapshot of the girl on the platform.

He carried the picture and was trying to find her or someone who could give her name and address. His search was in vain and he boarded the train knowing that his last chance to see the girl had gone again.

RULES FOR SANE LIVING

External incentives cause internal sluggishness. In the past to cure sluggishness of the system medicines have been used. But today scientists of all schools recognize that fact that medicines do not remove the cause of the trouble. Sane living and proper exercise and diet remove the cause and remake the troubled one.

If you wish physical vigor and health, if you wish mental power, if you wish to radiate vitality and keenness of body and mind not only for the way it makes you feel but for the way it makes you look and makes others feel, for the efficiency of service it places within your power, and if you cannot find the time to get out of doors and indulge in good, sweat producing, muscle stretching games and sports, then take the only other alternative and exercise at home each day. Give five minutes to health and it will be surprising how soon the results will begin to tell.

After a week of exercising regularly the exercises will become as necessary to your comfort as your bath or tooth-brush. The day of the liver pill is past: Nature is the great doctor of today. If you follow Nature's dictates you will not only be well but you will find that your personality will improve with your health. You will have found the Fountain of Chama.

"Reconstruction" Is Topic At Y.W.C.A.

Miss Marjorie Dimmitt, instructor of English, addressed the Y. W. C. A. at the meeting Thursday afternoon at 4:30 in the gymnasium. Miss Dimmitt's topic was "Reconstruction." She said heretofore the student body of DePauw has been ruled by a few, not representative of the whole. We have had an autocracy, not a democracy. This small group of students has seemed to strive to maintain an influence against a high-minded code of honor on the campus, to prevent any possible sympathetic relations between the student and his professors. Conditions on the campus cannot be as they should unless the students and the faculty can work together. There are three things, Miss Dimmitt said, necessary in the reconstruction. First, DePauw loyalty, a loyalty which will prevent the spread of false rumors all over the state. Second, there should be an individual integrity. Each student should be morally responsible, and not easily influenced by the examples of others. And lastly, and most important, is the acquisition of a different campus atmosphere. We will have to have governing officials in the student body who are respected and trusted by the students. The college paper should reflect the real campus opinions, should be the outlet for opinions of every organization and every student.

WHAT SHOULD BE DONE?

The best good that can possibly come out of the clearing up of the distressingly obnoxious situation on the DePauw campus is a better understanding between students and faculty. This may mean a more frank and charitable attitude on the part of the faculty, and undoubtedly it will mean an awakened conscience within the student body. Speaking from the view-point of a student, I believe there is already universally prevalent among the students a distaste and hatred for the practice of cribbing and a resolve that the present condition shall never happen again in the future. It is also plain that individual faculty members have resolved to do all they can to prevent dishonest work. However, since there has been no aggressive and united step on the part of both bodies, faculty and students, there is an increasing doubt in the minds of each body concerning the position and attitude of the other. So long as such doubts and suspicions exist there will be no possible success in the attempt to get co-operation and harmony. The students should not get the impression that the faculty are exploiting them for purposes of imposing penalties, neither should the faculty carry on investigations with the attitude that students have no view-point worthy of consideration. The thing most needed is a clear, unmistakable and definite statement of the policies and positions of the entire student body and faculty. How can this be accomplished? This can be done only through adequately representative bodies. Is it necessary to create another organization in order to have the students fairly represented? What is the matter with the student council? It has been constituted and tacitly supported by the students. It is the authoritative organ of the DePauw society so far as the students are concerned. I believe in the student council as an organization and feel that through it the student body can be well represented. If the fraternities feel that they need a more direct representation than what the student council can afford, then let them speak through Kappa Tau Kappa. If the student council cannot be directly accessible to the co-eds, let them speak through the Pan-Hellenic and self-government associations. These organizations could certainly speak through the student council to the faculty and to the public. Of course, no one doubts the need of an aggressive step and adequate representation, but a great many doubt the need of more organizations on the DePauw campus. It may be that if the students would wake up and co-operate with the existing organizations that there would be no need of any change of representation. The students have been publicly invited to attend student council meetings. How many have attended? Too many of us sit back and harangue about proceedings and conditions without using the good sense of actively co-operating and advising the representatives in these bodies.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY DEPAUW FRENCH CLUB

The French Club held its last meeting this week at Mansfield Hall, at which time the following officers were elected for next year: President—Alice Watts. Vice President—Belinda Crane. Secretary—Mary Mutschler. Treasurer—Mary Clapp. "Le Cercle Français" was organized the first of January by thirty French students. Since then regular meetings have been held and time devoted to the readings from modern authors and to conversation.

Next year the club plans to study the French people and their customs, as well as the language. A French play will probably be given about the middle of the year.

GYM EXHIBIT HUGE SUCCESS.

The third annual exhibition given at the Bowman memorial gymnasium Friday night under the direction of Miss Sophia Steese was one of the most uniquely successful of any that have been seen on the campus. The impression of precision and co-operation created by the procession of classes, the opening feature, was followed up by splendid work by both sophomores and freshmen in their drills. The manual of arms and tactics, by the sophomores, reminded the audience of sunset and the S. A. T. C. Their work was especially admirable in view of the fact that they had only a week in which to work it up.

Excellent work was done in the basketball game between the seniors (Goldye Pyle, captain), and juniors (Mary Mutschler, captain) demonstrating the new 1919 rules for women. A score of 5-0 in favor of the seniors was wound up during the ten minutes that were allowed for the game. An interesting group was the high jump (Ruth Sinks, '20, winner); low hurdles (Maude Kemp, '22, winner); hop, step, jump (Irene Foster, '20, winner), and the relay.

One of the most entertaining features was a series of "informal games" between sophomores and freshmen, in which they walked, they skipped, they ran, "like sea gulls with flapping wings," to the grave danger of the guards at the corners as they raced for the inside track.

The dancing this year was particularly charming and graceful. An interpretation of "The Barcarolle" from "Tales of Hoffman" by Miss June Moll, '20, was given with an unusual touch of sympathy and imagination, and the "Salsarella," an Italian dance in costume by Misses Arnold, Hester, Corey, MacMillan, Robison and Starkey sparkled with rich warmth. The Colonial Gavotte in costume by Miss Huckriede, '19, and Miss Moll delighted the audience with its quaint grace. The folk dancing, which included Slovak, Flemish, Russian and Irish types, was done with appreciative enthusiasm.

Many of the numbers were encored, and as it rose to its feet the audience remarked: "This is the most we've had for fifteen cents since before the war."

FACULTY GIVE FACTS OF THE INVESTIGATION

The most outstanding as well as the most thorough investigation that has ever been carried on at DePauw University was nearing an end Saturday when the faculty committee which has been probing the recent examination "cribbing" scandal here paused in its work and issued a statement concerning the result of the investigation. Thirty students the committee states have been implicated in the examination question stealing and cheating scrape and punishment has already been meted out to every wrong doer in proportion to his misdemeanor.

The statement issued by the faculty investigating committee Saturday was the first official word on the matter given out. It contradicted a score of fantastic reports which had gained credence on the campus during the last week. The members of the faculty committee were Prof. R. L. Eckhardt, Prof. H. B. Longdon, Prof. R. W. Pence, Prof. W. W. Sweet, Prof. W. M. Blanchard and Prof. W. M. Hudson.

Altogether near one hundred students were examined and thirty, approximately one-half of whom are women, were found guilty, the committee states.

Four men, three of whom were seniors and one a sophomore, were expelled. Four other students have been suspended and will not be permitted to attend school here until the fall term. Two of those suspended were men, one a freshman, the other a senior. The two women suspended were juniors.

Contrary to a report that had gone out that every fraternity and sorority house on the campus had obtained and used a set of the examination questions, the committee states that the investigation showed that neither the Alpha Chi Omega nor the Alpha Gamma sororities were implicated in the scrape.

The investigation has in many ways been the most sensational that has ever been held in the Methodist school. It began two weeks ago when irregularities were discovered on the papers handed in by freshmen students in the French department. A faculty committee was appointed and an investigation began. As a result of the committee's work it was discovered that one set of questions in Spanish and French, and two sets in the psychology department had been obtained by students prior to the examination.

As a result of the recent trouble it is thought DePauw will never again have a similar experience. Already plans are being formulated.

WORSE YET AT PURDUE.

At DePauw several students were accused of stealing exam questions. That would not help here. We could not answer some of them anyway.—Purdue Exponent.

To Stage Inter-Class Track Meet

An inter-gymnasium class track and field meet will be staged next Saturday morning on McKee Field, according to a statement made today by Coach Buchheit. This comes as a result of the men not being able to take part in the gymnasium exhibit held last night through the R. O. T. C. which took the time otherwise used in preparation. Coach Buchheit also hopes to uncover some track material which is so badly needed for the varsity squad.

All members of the gymnasium classes are eligible for this meet and are asked to sign up with Coach Buchheit the first part of the week for the events in which they wish to participate. The judges have not yet been selected, but they will probably consist of members of the faculty. The events, all except the two-mile run, will be the same as ordinarily are held in a varsity meet. Because of the lack of a place and time to practice, the two-mile run has been omitted.

W. S. G. A. VOTES FOR HONOR PLAN

Merits of the honor system as proposed for DePauw are undergoing a thorough consideration by the W. S. G. A. board. The members are at present studying the various plans of the system as used in other schools from which they expect to frame suggestions for a constitution most applicable to DePauw. A committee from the board will act in co-operation with the student council in instituting this movement, it is said.

The board has voted unanimously for the institution of an honor system here. In the meeting last Thursday night it was decided each member should take up the matter with the body she represented in order to be sure the majority of girls would stand behind the honor system or any other plan which could best improve present conditions at DePauw. Students of mathematics under Professor Geo. W. Gorrell voted two weeks ago to use honor government in that particular class room, but have been forbidden by a faculty committee to do so until a system can be planned for the entire school.

The main point of objection to the desired system is the student reporting of cheating. The majority of students, it is said, think it is not the most honorable thing to report fellow students, but others contend that if there is honor in the DePauw student body here will be little or no cheating of any kind and if one so debases his honor he should be dealt with severely by the students themselves.

Miss Agnes Lakin, president of S. G. A., reported to the student council on the honor system used at the University of Minnesota. There the women caught cheating are tried before the Women's Student Academic Council, and the men before a similar tribunal composed of men. The decision of the council is referred to a faculty committee and the two bodies co-operate in inflicting punishment. Here as elsewhere the individual student is on his honor to report unfairness of any kind.

In the next meeting of the board definite action will be taken on this proposition in accordance with the desires of women students as reported by their representatives.

ASK HOW PROFS REGARD PLAN OF STUDENT CAUCUS

The student body of DePauw has admitted that there have arisen not a few cases of misunderstanding between faculty and students during the last two weeks, and are more than willing to take the initiative in helping to eliminate these differences. What is the faculty going to do? This is the question which students were asking today.

D. E. Lillenthal, author of the proposal to form a student administration council, when asked what further step had been taken, said: "The student body can take no further step than it has until the faculty shows its intention of coming half way by making a move. He stated that it had been arranged by every fraternity, sorority and non-organized student group to immediately bring the matter to the attention of the members of their respective groups. The students have been aware that something must be done to adjust these differences, and already organized and unorganized groups have expressed their approval of the proposition, he said, although the matter has not had time to be taken up in regular meetings as yet. Lillenthal said that he expected to receive authentic reports from organizations on Monday night.

Only a few of the faculty have expressed their opinion. However, these opinions on a whole are very favorable. Professor H. B. Longdon said today when asked how he felt about the matter, "I do not think this so-called gap is as bad as it has been reported, but if there is such a gap it is my wish to see it closed at once. I feel that this is the wish of the faculty also. It seems as though a few of the faculty may not be in favor of the proposal. Professor R. W. Pence said: "There is a detestable attempt upon the part of the students to make a split between faculty and students." It is sincerely hoped by the students that this is not the opinion of any other professors or instructors of the university.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES

Do not hesitate to darn embroideries. It is quite the thing to do with fine and valuable pieces of work, just as fine lace mending is approved by even the wealthy if it is necessary to preserve a bit of beauty. Lace menders are so expert that it is difficult and frequently impossible to detect their work and it is possible to mend embroidery in the same way.

Tiny linen crochet baskets in which to serve salted nuts or bonbons at table are now decorated with colored initials or flower baskets done in cross stitch work. The work is put on at the sides where a solid oval or square is crocheted for the purpose. The bit of color makes the baskets look like little Dresden china ones, after they are starched and done up freshly.

Blanket stitch is popular at the present time, largely due to the fact that a bit of color can quickly be applied in a decorative way by means of this useful stitch. Some of the new serge dresses of dark blue have a bit of embroidery done in this way, using worsteds as the medium. Long and short blanket stitch around the collar and the sleeves or outlining a vest effect on the front of the dress, with perhaps a scroll design carried out in the same way on the girdle, gives a telling touch to the gown. Gray worsted or an old blue shade on a darker blue are new and attractive combinations.

KEEP BRAIN BUSY WRITE EXERCISES

Scientist Proves by Working Both Hands Your Mind Becomes More Powerful.

ONLY HALF OF MAN DEVELOPED

You would increase your working power if you could have the use of all your brain. Recent extraordinary experiments by psychologists seem to prove beyond a doubt that the greatest intellectual efficiency can be procured by the proper training of both hands. By thus bringing the nerves of both sides of the body into action dormant brain cells come into use. A British psychologist, in a paper in which he gives an excerpt, suggests that even genius may be due to the fact that both sides of the brain are working up to their capacity.

A certain large business firm, our authority tells us, has important commercial relations with the Argentine Republic. The business was developed and its existence continued through the tact and diplomacy of a third member of the firm, who was stationed at Buenos Aires.

His position required, of course, a knowledge of Spanish, which he spoke fluently. In the midst of the most successful month the firm had enjoyed since its establishment this South American member died unexpectedly. The two partners were thrown into a panic. Owing to the peculiarly delicate relations that existed between the firm and its Argentine market no one but either surviving member could be trusted to undertake the continuation of the business so unexpectedly endangered. It was imperative that one of them should depart for South America. It was deemed that the younger man, who was about 35 years old, should undertake this task.

But he knew almost nothing of Spanish. However, he set about mastering the language under a competent teacher. Several days passed and little was accomplished. He redoubled his efforts and the number of hours he daily devoted to the work. Several more days passed, with little result. His main shortcoming, a vital one, was his difficulty in memorizing words.

The two partners were on the verge of despair. Then the unbelievable happened. The wife of the junior partner had a poor relation who sometimes was invited to dinner. This man did not amount to much from a commercial point of view; in fact, he always had been looked upon as a failure and a "dreamer."

As life runs now he was both of these. One night, just at the critical juncture in the junior partner's affairs, this dreamer, who jumbled a little in modern psychology, dropped in to dinner as an unexpected guest. The conversation between the host and his wife naturally drifted to the desperate situation in which his firm found itself and to his inability to progress in a supposedly easily acquired language as the reason.

The "dreamer" listened with marked interest. Then, turning to his agitated host, he said in a quiet way: "I think I can help you." And help him he did, for a month later, due entirely to the instruction of the "dreamer," the junior partner sailed for Buenos Aires with a practical knowledge of Spanish. What had happened? What did the "dreamer" say that night at dinner?

He said something like this: "You're a shrewd business man and a successful one, too, but I don't suppose you ever give your brain matter any thought. Have you ever heard about a 'speech center'? Well, you've got one all right, on the left side of your brain, and it's carrying about as much of a load as it can carry in remembering and using the English language.

"Fortunately you have, or ought to have a second 'speech center' on the other half of your brain, but it's never used; it's like a white sheet of paper that's never been written on. It ought to absorb the Spanish you want just like a sponge taking up water. It's asleep, dormant—you'll have to trick it into life and action.

"In your instance and under the circumstances the only way I can think of doing so will be by writing down every Spanish word and phrase you study with your left hand."

Extraordinary as it may seem, this is a true story.

It has long been common psychological knowledge that the left half of the brain has full command over the right side of the body, while the right half of the brain exercises a like command over the left side of the body. An electric shock applied to the right half of the brain will cause movement on the left side of the body similarly the left half of the brain so stimulated affects the right side of the body.

Every movement of an arm or leg originates in a well-mapped-out center on the opposite half of the brain. Any injury to one of these centers shows itself in some form of paralysis, but always on the opposite side.

If we have speed centers which have never been developed, as proved in the two illustrations presented, is it not possible that we have other brain centers unused, asleep, wasting, solely because we have thus far not learned of their presence and how to bring them into the field of activity? It has been shown that we habitually use less than one-half of our brain for thinking purposes.

The question arises as to whether or not the left hand should be made to develop a "cunning" equal to the right hand, not for purely "business" and "trades" reasons, but for the individual's own good and efficiency as well. "The school instruction of today," says Maria Kiplani of Belgium, "is productive of the most deplorable one-sidedness of the child's body. Through the exclusive teaching of the right hand only what might be called 'pedagogical paralysis' is produced in the child, which in later years, particularly in late adult life, often becomes a true medical paralysis. What does this mean? Simply this. That a paralysis of one side of the body in a grown person is often the result of failing to develop equally the right and left sides of the body of the child! That statement would be difficult to disprove when considered in all its possible ramifications. It is startling enough to take the breath away!

Katscher of Germany, though not so radical, is equally positive. "The equal development of the two hands would facilitate instruction of hand and brain," he says, "for the child so trained learns his lessons more quickly, comprehends better, remembers longer what he learns and executes all that he has to do more promptly. Those so trained show themselves in all ways superior to those who have learned the use of only one hand; in short, they are twice as efficient."

None of us are quite so "well balanced" as we think we are. Prof. Van Vleet of the University of Ghent has brought this fact to light just recently. He shows that we are all "lopsided," so to speak. After making many repeated tests on more than 200 students this Belgian professor neatly demonstrated, for instance, that in all who are "right-handed" the right hand is muscularly the stronger, while in the "left-handed" the left possesses the greater muscular strength.

But there's nothing extraordinary about that, you may exclaim. Probably not, but you will have to admit that what followed was at least surprising, for in experimenting to determine whether or not there is any difference in the acuity or "sharpness" of the nerves of hearing on the two sides, the experiments showed that in persons whose hearing was considered in every way normal the right ear hears far the better in "right-handed" individuals, while, on the contrary, it is the left ear which detects sounds more easily in all persons who are "left-handed."

If such facts were demonstrable in the case of the hearing, what could be shown as regards the eyesight? The professor made further tests. He learned that as to the "sharpness" of the optic nerve, eyesight in those whose eyes were declared normal is far keener in the right eye of "right-handers," but far better in the left of those who happen to be "left-handed." He later made these tests in thousands of cases and always with the same surprising results.

Even as regards the sensitiveness of the touch, the results were equally convincing. In this same series of experiments the right-handed were found to have a superior sense of touch on the right side in contrast to the "left-handed," in whom this sense is more delicate on the left side.

Briefly, then, from the point of view of the development of the nervous system, all humanity is divided into two parts or sides, with one-half of the nervous system, including the brain, better developed than the other half, and the "left sides" with an equally half-developed nervous system the exact opposite of the other.

The great fact to remember in this discussion, it is urged, is that most of us are using just one-half of our brain power. One-half of our brain cells are asleep—"subconscious"—and need to be aroused into activity by some method and thus brought into the field of "consciousness" and usefulness.

For instance, a complete injury of the right half of the brain would cause a complete paralysis on the left side of the body. Now, we all have a "speech center" situated on one-half of the brain, on the left side in right-handed persons, but, curiously enough, on the right side in all who are left-handed. Up to a short time ago it was thought that we had only one of these "speech centers." It was Prof. Frankel of Germany who upset this time-honored belief.

Prof. Frankel had a patient who had lost his speech through disease or injury to his speech center in the brain. The occurrence is by no means an uncommon one. This patient was right-handed. By putting him through a systematic course of writing exercises with the left hand Frankel succeeded in completely restoring the speech of this unfortunate, an achievement until recently never dreamed of.

Washable Gloves.

Washable gloves such as women are wearing now are an economy in two ways. Suppose they are white or a pastel shade, they give the walking costume a well cared for and dainty air, and they are healthy because they require constant cleaning.

The process can be undertaken at home and only demands a few moments' work. Take the gloves (we refer to those made of washable kid, dooskin or chamoin), put them on the hands, and using any white and freely lathering soap, wash them well.

When the gloves are clean rinse them thoroughly in fresh water, and then immediately rub on more soap. Let this soap dry into the gloves, and it will be found that they will be pliant and comfortable to wear when they are put on.

SOLDIERS GIVE INTERESTING ADDRESSES AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Ferdinand LeFevre and Hisato Santo, of France and Japan, relate interesting stories of the present war. Large audience attended.

A large audience greeted the speakers at the Christian church Sunday night. After music by Howard Miles and Mrs. Young, Mr. Ferdinand LeFevre gave a fine address. He surprised all with his splendid English. He told of his baptism of fire at Verdun in a machine gun company. He said: "In spite of the flood of shells we stood firm and the Germans could not pass. He says, referring to the Somme: "It was quite impossible to go over the top because of mud in which we sank up to our knees and even to the waists." He was also at Argonne. Speaking of the attack in Champagne: "At noon we came up to the Germans' third line. I was thrown to the ground and blood gushed from my left leg; a hand grenade had pierced it. Then as I tried to stand up a machine gun bullet caught my right arm and threw me again to the ground." He was three months in a hospital. He said, "These wounds also prevented me from having the honor of fighting by the side of the valiant American troops. However I know, and all the world knows, what was done by them. He spoke of our help in the war as a return for what Lafayette did for us. He spoke of the glowing welcome given him by the Greencastle people.

Mr. Hisato Santo, of Japan, in his splendid address showed that he is at home on the platform. He gave a very fine description of our relations with Japan and called us their mother. He said Commodore Perry was not an invader but an envoy of peace and that he opened Japan's door of isolation extending over twenty-five centuries. He spoke of the monuments in Tokio and Yokohama to Perry. Captain Hardy, the only living sailor of the Perry expedition, last year visited Japan and noted the wonderful progress. He spoke of the helpful work of Judge Bingham as U. S. minister in standing for the rights of Japan. Gen. Grant gave wise counsel in the dispute over the Loochoo Islands. "Mr. Ito gave us a constitution patterned after that of the U. S., and this one we have now." He referred to the sympathetic service of Roosevelt for Japan in the Portsmouth, N. H., conference. He spoke of what Dr. Capron had done for agriculture in Japan. Col. J. W. Crawford for railways, Dr. Eastlake for education, and Captain L. L. Jones for Christianity. Japan patronized our Liberty Loans liberally. Many students are coming to the United States to study and this will still more closely bind us together as nations. He condemned the German propaganda that reported America and Japan as enemies. "The 'yellow peril' was made in Germany," he said. "America and Japan are friends, not enemies. The land of Stars and Stripes and the land of the rising sun are sisters. So they were, so they always shall be. No war shall be between the two, but peace—eternal peace. The Pacific ocean is not the terrible gulf of war, but the shining sea of peace."

HOW TO PROVIDE SUMMER HOG FEED

Prospects are that hog feeds will be somewhat scarce and high in price until the new grain crops are available and the animal husbandry division of Purdue University believes that more extensive use of forage crops, buying the most economical hog feeds, and early grain corn and soy beans in corn for hogging off will help the farmers of Putnam county to meet this situation.

If red clover or alfalfa pasture is available for spring and summer use there will be little need to provide other forage crops. If these are not available, oats and dwarf Essex rape sown as early as weather and soil conditions will permit will supply an excellent forage. Prepare the ground as for oats and seed six to eight pecks of oats and four to five pounds of dwarf Essex rape per acre. This crop is ready to pasture when six to eight inches high. An acre will supply forage for ten to fifteen mature hogs. Extension bulletin No. 66 gives considerable information about the culture and use of forage crops for hogs.

By studying the comparative feeding value and market prices of the farm grown grains, their by-products and commercial mixed hog feeds the farmer will be able to buy those which will return the largest amount of work per dollar invested in feed. Your county agent or the Purdue extension department will be glad to give you full information in regard to feed values for hogs.

Barley is undoubtedly the best crop to sow to supply early grain for hogs in the northern part of the state. Success, beardless and Odebrucker are good varieties. Seed six to eight pecks of seed per acre just as early as possible on a seed bed prepared the same as for oats. In the central and southern parts of the state it may be advisable to plant a small acreage of ninety-day corn.

Soybeans planted in field corn make an excellent combination for fattening hogs during the fall months. Extension leaflet No. 102 gives full information about this practice. Any of the publications mentioned can be obtained from the county or direct from the Purdue extension department at Lafayette.

DR. EARL BULL, MISSIONARY TO LECTURE IN GREENCASTLE
Dr. Earl R. Bull, a Methodist missionary to Japan for seven years, will give illustrated lectures in the Bloomington district of the Methodist Episcopal church the week of April 8 to 14.

NATIONAL BANK ASSETS REACH NEW HIGH MARK

Washington, April 7.—Deposits and resources of national banks outside of New York City on March 4 were the greatest ever reported, and were notably large in country banks, Controller of the Currency Williams announced Saturday. He did not give the figures on these items. In New York some banks showed reductions.

In the three months ending April 1, ninety-six applications for national bank charters were received and eighty-eight applications for increase in capital were approved. Forty-four applications for new charters were granted and three were refused, while 189 applications still are under investigation.

PLANT EARLY POTATOES NOW

Lafayette, Ind., April 7.—Plant early potatoes as soon as the soil may be gotten into good condition. The earlier planted crop will mature more quickly and will show correspondingly high yields, F. C. Gaylord of the Purdue university extension staff, declares. A sandy soil with a south slope is preferable as a place for early tubers. Plow deeply and thoroughly work the soil, the same as for any garden crop, he advises.

Triumph is perhaps the earliest potato in Indiana, but it has a tendency to blight and will not produce as well as Early Ohio, an elongated oval pink tuber, or the Irish Cobbler, a square shaped potato with white skin, the garden specialist says.

In preparing seed, cut pieces about the size of an egg with two good eyes to each piece. Plant in rows 2½ feet apart and 10 to 12 inches in the row.

HANS HINDENBURG

"Hans Hindenburg," 110-pound German police and dispatch dog that was captured by the men of the Twenty-seventh division when they broke the Hindenburg line. He was later used by the Twenty-seventh for the same purpose and had his first view of this country when he was brought back on the Mt. Vernon with the military police of the division.

Sailor Son Comes Home.

Mr. E. A. D. Parker, of Concordia, Kan., received a visit one night from his son, Lieut. Commander C. F. Parker, being the second visit in the last twenty-five years. At the age of 12 years this son went to sea. For some years before the war he was sailing on the Pacific, and has been captain of the ship Rose City. Last summer he was transferred from the Pacific to the Atlantic, and became captain of the West Mount. Just recently he was again transferred to the Pacific ocean and made commander in the naval reserve.

Women to Be Cops.

When the civil service commission of Dayton, O., held its examination recently there were six women who took the examination to be policemen. The commission has held that women are eligible to serve, and it may be but a short time when women cops are found patting the beats in Dayton. It is said that there are some "Amazons" among the applicants.

Members of the agricultural class in the Brazil high school have arranged to test seed corn for Clay county farmers. The boys have plenty of equipment and they will charge 25c per bushel to pay expenses of the club winners to the state round-up at Purdue University, April 21, 22, 23 and 24.

A community oats smut treating demonstration was held recently in Huntington county, five farmers bringing their seed oats together to treat to prevent smut and clean it, about 150 bushels being handled.

Chicken Croquettes—Melt in a double boiler on tablespoonful of butter, and add the same amount of flour; when it is foamy stir in one half cupful of cream, and one half cupful of chicken stock; stir constantly until smooth and thick, then season with salt and pepper to taste, remove from the stove, and stir in two well beaten eggs and one pint of chopped, cooked chicken. When the mixture is cold, form into egg shaped croquettes, and fry a golden brown in deep fat. These are pretty served in nests made out of yellow celery tops.

Escalloped Lamb—A layer of rice boiled potatoes sliced, a layer of chopped lamb, butter, pepper and salt, then potatoes and lamb until the dish is full. Pour over hot milk and bake in oven. This makes a very nice dish for supper on a cold night. Even potatoes escalloped with cut meat are very good, but stir in a little flour with the milk so it will not be thin. Did you ever toast potatoes? Slice cold boiled potatoes lengthwise so the slices may be handled better and put them on the toast iron. It takes longer to toast than it does bread because they are damp. Let them brown and eat them hot with butter and salt. You can also make a very nice pea soup from your lamb bone after the meat is off. Two quarts of cold water, one cup split peas, one onion, celery leaves or celery seed, salt and pepper and the lamb bone. Cook half a day, slowly, then mash the peas thru a strainer and wet up one tablespoon of flour and stir into the soup; then repeat, and I think you will find this a very palatable supper dish.

Two hundred pounds of fertilizer per acre on wheat gave better results for members of the Jasper County Farmers' Association than either 100 pounds or 300 pounds.

HOW DIPHTHERIA

IS CONTRACTED
One often hears the expression, "My child caught a severe cold which developed into diphtheria," when the truth was that the cold had simply left the little one particularly susceptible to the wandering diphtheria germ. If your child has a cold when diphtheria is prevalent you should take him out of school and keep him off the street until fully recovered, as there is a hundred times more danger of his taking diphtheria when he has a cold. When Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given it quickly cures the cold and lessens the danger of diphtheria or any other germ disease being contracted.—Adv.

A Superfluous Matchmaker

The colonel and Mr. Tommy Tarver walked away up the road together. "God bless my soul!" said the colonel. "God bless my soul!"

The two walked on for some little distance in silence, the colonel sympathetically slaughtering nettles with his cane. Mr. Tarver staring studiously in front of him.

"Are you sure you're not making a mistake?" asked the colonel presently. "I'm afraid not," replied Mr. Tarver gravely.

"You've had some experience?" probed the colonel, a chastened interest creeping into his voice. "I'm paying for it now," said Mr. Tarver, diplomatically.

The colonel made a clacking noise with his tongue twice, ceased his campaign against the nettles and tried to compose his features into the most sympathetic expression they were capable of. "It's an extraordinary thing," said he.

"It always is," said Mr. Tarver. He added slowly, "I think she likes me, sir—but not so much as I could wish." "It's an extraordinary thing," repeated the colonel, and he gave a little sigh. "Her mother was just the same—just the same."

"How do you mean sir?" asked Mr. Tarver.

"Didn't know her own mind—didn't know what she wanted," explained the colonel.

"Then you mean"—began Mr. Tarver.

"I mean," said the colonel solemnly, "that after she had told me 'no' I went back and found her crying her pretty eyes out!"

Mr. Tarver was silent for a little space; and then, "I didn't go back," he said.

"Why not?" asked the colonel.

"There was no need of it," said Mr. Tarver in a constrained voice.

"Nonsense," said the colonel bravely. "I know Christina better than you do. She's the best girl in the world, but she has just the same feeling as her dear mother had; she doesn't know what she really does want—until it's too late or very nearly so."

"It's very good of you to give me any hope, sir," said Mr. Tarver, "and I'm glad to think that you are on my side."

The colonel turned toward him. "Are you hard hit?" he asked suddenly.

Mr. Tarver was beginning to make inarticulate noises when the colonel cut him short. "Very well," he said, "are you content to leave it to me?"

Mr. Tommy Tarver's face flushed, and his speech was stumbling. "What right have I"—he began haltingly, when the colonel interrupted him.

"Tush!" he said. "Why, you're beginning by being afraid of her. That's not the way to go about it. What d'ye think the end will be if you start like that? You leave it to me. I know Christina better than you do. I care about you at all I'll find it out. Are you willing?"

Mr. Tommy Tarver stopped short and faced the colonel. "It's awful good of you," he said, "to interest yourself like this—most awfully good."

"I'll do it tonight," said the colonel with sudden determination. "I'll do it tonight. You come along some time after dinner. I'll be ready for you."

"Wouldn't that be a little too soon?" asked Mr. Tarver.

"Not a bit," said the colonel resolutely. "You come along; I shall have paved the way for you."

"Then it's a bargain?" said Mr. Tarver, holding out his hand.

"That's so," said the colonel, and shook on it.

The colonel sat with his daughter after dinner through the louver-shuttered French windows on the veranda. For a while he smoked his cigar in silence while his daughter slowly swung herself in a big rocking chair. The colonel could very well have gone on smoking in silence for some time, but he had a duty to perform, and though his sense of comfort increased every moment and the duty became more and more distasteful, he had given his word. And so, after four vigorous puffs, he very suddenly, and in a voice which he tried hard to keep in its normal tones said explosively: "I suppose I shall be losing you one of these days Christina?"

For the fraction of a second his daughter might have stopped rocking but it was not apparent, and when she spoke, she was swinging as easily as before. "Am I such a responsibility?" she asked merrily.

"My dear," said the colonel, "you know very well what I mean."

"Father," said Christina, "you're growing sentimental."

"Well, my dear," said the colonel, "it's got to happen some day, hasn't it?"

His daughter said nothing for a moment, and then, "Why?" she asked.

"Because," replied the colonel gallantly, "because you are what you are Christina." He added after a moment's pause, "And because your mother would have liked it."

Christina stopped swinging. "And you, father?" she asked quietly.

"And I should like it, too," said the colonel stoutly.

His daughter rose from the rocking chair, bent over him and kissed the top of his ear. "You know you would never let me go," she said.

"That," said the colonel sentimentally, "is because you have never met any one yet, Christina."

His daughter said nothing to this, and so the colonel went on easily. "Now, let me see who there is about here."

"You're in a great hurry to get rid of me," said Christina.

"My dear," said the colonel, "you have no mother, and I am only doing my duty."

His daughter again said nothing, and so the colonel went on faithfully. "Now there is Mr. Tarver."

"Mr. Tarver!" said the girl.

"Mr. Tarver," repeated the colonel gravely. "Mr. Tommy Tarver; generally known, I believe, as 'Tommy.'"

"Oh!" said his daughter.

"What is there to object to in Mr. Tarver?" asked the colonel.

"Nothing—but—"

"Ah, my dear," said the colonel, "the world is so difficult, and a kiss is so easy."

His daughter's cheeks flamed, and very suddenly she dropped on one knee beside his chair. "Mr. Tarver—Tommy"—she began with shining eyes.

"Eh!" said the colonel.

"Tommy," continued the daughter rosy, "Tommy asked me to marry him today—and I promised."

"What!" cried the colonel. "Why?"

"I know," said his daughter; "I knew we thought that you would never hear of it; we didn't know how you would take it, and so we planned that Tommy should sound you."

"But he as good as told me that he thought his case was hopeless," said the colonel. "He told me that he wished you could have liked him better."

"He might wish it," said his daughter, "but I don't think it possible."

"God bless my soul!" said the colonel. "God bless my soul!"

Sage Advice to Literary Aspirants.

Doubtless many of our readers who solicitously desire to enter upon a literary career ask themselves why we do not directly give them leading suggestions in the line of their aspirations, but so unkindly leave them to nurse their own solicitudes. We have been far from indifferent to this silent appeal, but when our thoughts have turned that way we have been confronted by the utter futility of the attempt to give them practical form. Perhaps what we have just been saying affords an explanation, since acting in an editorial capacity, where the appeal has become articulate in connection with contributions actually submitted, we have found it difficult to be more than negatively suggestive. How much more difficult out of the air to meet the unvoiced but felt appeal!

If the young writer attempting fiction wishes to contribute to periodicals, it might be of use to him if he could be shown what short stories seem especially desirable to different classes of weekly and monthly publications. The writer can best find out for himself by actual observation and by his own intuitive impressions rather than through any definite classification—if that were possible—made out for him. It is in published material apart from fiction that obvious variations are most discernible, owing to the different audiences sought. When a publication aims at a range of popularity inconsistent with judicious selection, the fiction as well as other matter will be of a sensational character, and fail to appeal to the cultivated taste and intelligence of thoughtful readers. The stories will depend for their interest upon striking incident and eccentricities of idiom and situation rather than upon fidelity to life or genuine characterization.

In the comparatively few periodicals willing to sacrifice indiscriminate popularity, not to academic standards necessarily, but at least to a natural scheme of excellence, and trusting to the expansion of a real culture for its prosperity, the variations in fiction are not fixed, but dependent upon the individual creator. For the literary aspirant who cares more for the worth of his work than for merely commercial success, such periodicals will best reward careful study. He will at once see that writers of developed power do not aim at accommodation to publications or to audiences, but that their appeal is based on their developed sensibilities, and that they are inimitable, save perhaps in certain unessential traits.

It is worth the aspirant's while, also, to read contemporary fiction and short stories of eminent writers collected in book form. The close attention to books has its perils in possibly too rigid seclusion or in the too ready adoption of past models, but to a flexible and expansive sensibility the advantages are incalculable.—Harper's Magazine.

Suspicious.

They hadn't been married very long when one evening Mr. Jones came home to find his bride in tears.

"My darling—my darling!" he exclaimed in dismay. "What ever has happened? Oh, don't weep like that! Tell your husband what is wrong."

"O-o-h, John!" she gasped, as she choked back her sobs, "I-o-o-h, I've lost my diamond engagement ring!"

And again she buried her face in her handkerchief. Then the silence roused her curiosity and she looked up to see her husband smiling strangely at her.

"Do not cry," he said, in level tones, "I found it this morning in my trousers pockets!"

VICTORY LOAN AN APPEAL TO OUR BUSINESS SENSE

As a Business Proposition No Man Can Afford Not to Subscribe to Full Limit of His Ability.

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS, Author of "Tarzan of the Apes."

There are an infinite number of excellent reasons why we should support the Victory Liberty Loan.

The finest sentiments we possess must prompt us to subscribe to the loan even more freely than we did to the others. The government must get money or it would not ask us for it. The man who was prompted to lend in the past through fear, that if he did not the Germans might get over here and make it unpleasant for him is mighty "yellow" if he will not subscribe, now that the danger is past.

Our response to previous loans indicated that we were thoroughly in accord with the principles for which we were fighting, and by our response we authorized the expenditure of the sums necessary properly to prosecute the war. These enormous expenses must continue for some time. The obligations involved must not be repudiated. They are our obligations as individuals and we must look upon them as such. It is not only a matter of necessity; it is a matter of personal honor for us to meet these obligations promptly and gladly.

On the other hand, there is in the Victory loan an appeal to our business sense as well as to our patriotism. There is the appeal to self-interest, for the loan is not to be without profit to us. We are given an opportunity to invest in an absolutely safe security, and we will receive a good rate of interest. As a business proposition no man can afford not to subscribe to the full limit of his ability.

And there is another reason why we should subscribe every cent that we can rake and scrape together. It is this: If the government cannot raise the necessary funds by the sale of Liberty bonds, it must do it by direct taxation. The government has the power to tax us to meet these obligations, and if we are taxed we not only will get no interest but we will never get the principal back again.

It seems to me that both the wisdom and necessity for fully and immediately subscribing this Fifth Liberty Loan must be obvious to anyone whose mentality is greater than that of a child of ten. We are supposed to be an intelligent people, capable of governing ourselves and others. We pride ourselves upon our business acumen, upon our energy and upon our patriotism. In the Victory Liberty Loan we shall have an opportunity to prove to the world that we are better than vain boasters, and that we are fully deserving of the estimate which we have placed upon ourselves as a people.

The time is here. The opportunity is here. The eyes of the world are upon us—upon you. What the world shall think of us depends not upon the action of others but upon what you do—YOU.

—HELP "FINISH THE JOB."—

To Bring Soldiers Back.

Part of the proceeds of the Victory Liberty Loan are to be used to bring our soldiers and sailors back and restore them to the useful occupations of peace. Every true-blue 100 per cent American should have a part in this work.

—HELP "FINISH THE JOB."—

It's Not Time to Quit.

The Germans, not the Americans, were the quitters, but our work is not finished until we have brought the victors home. Let's finish the job by oversubscribing the Victory Liberty Loan as we did all its predecessors.

For the Housewife

You can produce a brilliant polish on your glassware by adding a little turpentine to the washing water, about a couple of teaspoonsful to the gallon.

When ironing round dollies or lunch-cloth place a heavy bath towel or piece of flannel on the board, then lay the linen so that the threads are parallel and at right angles to the board. If placed in this way the iron will naturally move with the threads of the linen. If the threads of the linen are ironed diagonally the linen will wear out much more quickly, so care should be taken to move the iron parallel with the threads of the linen. Embroidered pieces are always ironed on the wrong side.

Health Notes.

When a cut will not stop bleeding apply ground rice or flour. Either one is efficacious.

Hold the hammered finger in water as hot as can be borne for a few minutes. This treatment will draw out the inflammation almost at once.

The hair should never be allowed to remain "put up" at night. This is apt to ruin it, and is, besides, not cleanly. It should be taken down at night, well combed and brushed, the scalp massaged and the hair well pulled or weeded out and then braided.

When traveling one should always bear in mind that cinders are apt to find their way into the eyes. An eye cup, a lotion for bathing and a few flaxseed should be included in your package. A boracic acid solution will be found soothing to eyes that are inflamed from dust, wind or foreign matter.
